THE PROBLEM

We measure everything.
We understand nothing.

We have more health data than ever in history. And we've never been more lost in it.

THE SOLUTION

What if you had an AI agent that actually understood your body?

All your health data, turned into one clear picture driven by actions.

HOW IT WORKS

Connect. Analyze. Act.

01 · Sync

Connect

Sync your wearables, upload blood panels, log symptoms — AION builds your full health picture.

02 · Analyze

Clarify

Get a clear health score and plain-language explanations. Not more raw numbers.

03 · Personalize

Act

Personalized recommendations to optimize your health, tailored to your biology.

04 · Monitor

Evolve

Your agent learns over time. Retest, resync, and watch your trajectory improve.

IN PRACTICE

Your agent thinks, pulls your data, and gives you real answers.

Should I work out today? When is the best time?

ANALYZING YOUR DATA...

 Oura Ring last night's recovery HRV 52ms · Sleep 84/100

 Apple Watch resting heart rate RHR 58 bpm · trend ↓

 Blood panel iron & cortisol Ferritin 22 · Cortisol pattern

Your HRV is above baseline and sleep was excellent. You're well recovered. Go for it. Your cortisol dips after 10am. Best window: 10am-12pm. Iron is low, so keep intensity moderate.

What should I eat for lunch?

CROSS-REFERENCING...

 Blood panel micronutrients Ferritin low · Vit D 28 ng/mL

 CGM glucose response history Spikes with refined carbs

Prioritise iron-rich foods: lentils, spinach, or red meat with vitamin C. A salmon bowl boosts D and omega-3s. Skip white rice. Your CGM shows quinoa or sweet potato spike less.
